

Hunting within the Missouri Headwaters State Park will be permitted as long as it does not conflict with the traditional recreational uses of the park. Hunters are reminded to follow all applicable rules and regulations. Together we can all help keep the Park open for future hunting opportunities.

Practice Leave No Trace:

Montana State Parks is a proud partner with the Leave No Trace Center for Outdoor Ethics. Please do not disturb vegetation or other natural features for the making of blinds or to create shooting paths. Pack out what you pack in. Be respectful of those who follow you here.

HUNTING INFORMATION

Missouri Headwaters State Park

Missouri Headwaters State Park welcomes all responsible hunters within the park during regular open hunting seasons. Within the boundaries of this 592 acre scenic park the Jefferson, Madison, and Gallatin rivers merge to form the 2,300 mile Missouri River. Missouri Headwaters State Park offers the opportunity for waterfowl hunting, such as ducks, coots and geese, big game animals such as White-tailed Deer, Mule Deer, and Moose, and also upland game birds, such as pheasants.

- Open for bird and archery seasons.
- Walk in only, including game retrieval.
- It is unlawful to hunt on, from or across any public highway
- It is unlawful to use any set gun, jacklight, spotlight, traps, snares, saltlick or bait.
- No discharge of weapons outside of open hunting seasons.
